

MET IN GARDENS

Statesmen Have Made History in Peaceful Spots.

Recent Occurrence in the Grounds at Chequers is an Example—Beginning of Fateful War.

It was in the garden at Chequers that the first intimation was given of the fateful conference at Washington upon which, remarks London Answers, got improbably, the future of civilization hangs.

It was Sunday afternoon and the American ambassador had arrived with a cablegram in his pocket from the American President. It was an invitation to the British government to send representatives to Washington to discuss the question of disarmament.

Mr. Harvey, the ambassador, and Mr. Lloyd George were seated together in the garden when the former handed the cablegram to our prime minister. In a flash the prime minister was on his feet. "We accept!" he almost shouted. "We accept gladly, we accept gratefully. We will do everything in our power to make the conference a success."

The Temple garden, on the embankment, is one of the most historic spots in London, for it was there that the Wars of the Roses commenced. These wars were so-called because the ensign of the house of York was a white rose, and that of the house of Lancaster a red rose.

The story goes that Lords Somerset and York, with a number of their retainers, met in the Temple gardens, and commenced to quarrel about the great King Henry VI., for whom the former was regent.

In the midst of the quarrel Somerset picked a red rose, and turning to his friends, said: "Let him who sides with me pluck a red rose and wear it in his cap."

Then the duke of York savagely tore a white rose from a neighboring bush, and cried: "This is my badge! Let him who is my friend pluck a white rose and wear it!"

This scene is pictured in one of the frescoes in the houses of parliament. It was one of the great turning points in English history, for the Wars of the Roses shattered feudalism, destroyed the power of the barons, and set in motion the spirit of freedom and democratic government which is the keynote of modern England.

The vast empire of India was virtually won for Britain in a garden. On February 5, 1757, just outside the village of Plassey, Surajah Dowlah had 30,000 troops and Clive 3,000.

Clive called a council of war, which advised him not to advance. Clive went into a garden alone, and set under a grove of trees for an hour in quiet thought. When he came out he rejected the council's advice, and subdued an empire in a battle which only lasted an hour!

Wilberforce first mooted the question of the abolition of the slave trade to Pitt in a garden. Wilberforce had just read Clarkson's famous essay on abolition, when he was invited to spend a week-end with Pitt, and wandered with him into the beautiful park at Holwood, near Bromley.

There he first announced his intention to the great statesman of bringing the subject before the house. The resolution was made at the foot of a tree called Wilberforce's oak, and a stone seat, erected by the earl of Stanhope, marks the spot.

A little later, when Wilberforce put his case before the house, Pitt, Fox and Burke supported him and all England rang with applause.

The Earth's Hot Box.

In connection with the recent earthquakes in Mexico and California, a negro preacher in Houston, Texas, has evolved an ingenious theory which, one must admit, fits very well existing circumstances. He addressed his flock as follows:

"Brethren an' sisters, we have received anudder warnin' not to go pesterin' into de ways ob Providence. De eart, breddern, revolves on its axles, an' it takes a right sma' lot ob grease to keep it lubricated. So de good Lord put petroleum inside de eart to keep de axles greased.

"Den, bye an' bye, long come all dem uth'le companies, punchin' down de ground clear down into de eart, an' quensequently all de uth'le axles 'boutin' out. Fust thing we know dere's a hot box an' de eart shakes an' rumbles an' grunts an' it's de earthquake. If dey don't quit it perty soon dere won't be no moah grease left and de eart will stick tight ob its axles an' won't go 'round no moah."—Wayside Tales.

Legs That Only Look Bare.

Even for out-of-doors skating the New York girls cannot give up the appearance of bare knees. They wear sport skirts to the knees and heavy woolen stockings turned down to the tops of the skating shoes. The color shivers at the sight of what he thinks are bare legs, until he discovers that the apparently naked legs are covered with flesh-colored wool hose.

The Lure of Battle.

"Mrs. Gadder is up and about again." "She made a quick recovery. She must have a good doctor." "She had a smart doctor." "Yes?" "He told her the Gadder clique was about to knuckle under to the rival faction led by the wealthy Mrs. Won."

What We Think.

A good deal of the time in order to break into "society" it is necessary to break out with money.

You can't keep going unless the income keeps coming.

A girl wishes to marry so that she won't be left, but after she's married she often finds that she often gets left.

When you get something for nothing, that's what it is worth.

Lots of people are worse off than you are but that's nothing for anybody to brag about.

If "everybody picks" on you, you deserve it.

The man who would like to travel, but hasn't the money, can't understand why those who have money ever stay at home.

After it's too late to do him any good, many a man discovers he has made a business success and a human failure.

Probably nobody ever believed an apology.

Sometimes we can't help feeling that the reason there are so many pictures of bathing and swimming girls is not because they bathe and swim.

You've got to give a backslider credit, he's been up front or he couldn't have slid back.

Some boys go to college and break records while others are content to break their fathers.

Judged by newspaper reports, some of the movie actors are called stars chiefly because they stay out nights.

You often hear of a confirmed bachelor but you never hear of a confirmed widower.

THE POINT OF VIEW

The girl who is told
She looks like a doll,
Shouldn't feel complimented.

A doll has false hair.

—W. E. Sutton in The N. R.

"What are the chances of my recovering, Doctor?"

"One hundred per cent. Medical records show that nine out of every ten die of the disease you have. Yours is the tenth case I've treated. Others all died. You are bound to get well. Statistics are statistics."

IN NO HURRY

"Henry" said Mrs. Glipping, in tearful tones.

"Well my dear?" replied Mr. Glipping, as he impatiently rattled the sport section of his paper. "What is it?"

"If I were to die to night would you marry again?"

"Not tonight."

REMINDED HIM OF HOME

The burglar entered the house as quietly as possible, but his shoes were not padded and they made some noise. He had just reached the door of the bedroom when he heard someone moving in the bed, as if about to get up, and he paused. The sound of a woman's voice floated to his ears.

"If you don't take off your boots when you come into the house," she said, "there's going to be trouble, and a lot of it. Here it's been raining for three hours, and you dare to tramp over carpets with your muddy boots on. Go down stairs and take them off this minute."

He went down stairs without a word, but he didn't take off his boots. Instead he went straight out into the night again, and the pal who was waiting for him saw a tear glistening in his eyes. "I just can't rob that house," he said, "it reminds me so of home."—Pittsburg Disp.

G. W. Spurlock, et al.
Pending before R. A. Montgomery, J. P., for Jackson County, Tennessee.

In this cause, it appearing by affidavit that Walter Rush, one of the defendants, is justly indebted as surety to plaintiff, and is a nonresident of the State of Tennessee, so that the ordinary process of law cannot be served upon him, and, an ancillary attachment having been levied by garnishment on his property, it is therefore ordered that this publication be made in the JACKSON COUNTY SENTINEL, a newspaper published in Gainesboro, Tennessee, for four consecutive weeks, commanding the said Walter Rush to appear before me in the courthouse in said town of Gainesboro, on the 18th day of March, 1922, at ten o'clock A. M., and make defense to said suit against him, or it will be proceeded with ex parte.

This February 11th, 1922.

R. A. Montgomery, J. P.

The Oldest Man in the World

Just part of a skull, two molar teeth and a thigh bone! Pieced together they made—what? One of the most perplexing mysteries in the study of human history. Were these the remains of an ape-like man who lived 500,000 years ago? Scientists believe that they were; they call him the "Dawn Man," and out of the record embedded in the rocks they have reconstructed the conditions of his life. How he killed his food and tore the raw flesh from the bones; how he married and fought and died! How little by little he clawed and clubbed his way up to mastery over the beasts. It is a fascinating, gripping story, but it is only one of a thousand stories that stir your blood in this greatest book of modern times.

H. G. WELLS' "Outline of History"

Now Offered You at One-Third the Original Price

A history that goes back 100,000,000 years—that traces man's rude beginnings 500,000 years ago—that follows him down through the ages to the Babylonia of Nebuchadnezzar, the Egypt of Cleopatra, the France of Napoleon, the America of today, through the Great War and on into the future United States of the World—that gives ALL history as one story—that is Wells!

Not only the history of the world, but the science of the world; the outstanding literature of the world; the philosophy of the world—vast panoramas unfolded before your eyes by the most graphic word painter of modern times. And THE REVIEW OF REVIEWS TOO. Wells begins with the dawn of time; before there were men; before there were even reptiles. In brief, magnificent strokes he paints the picture, bringing you straight down to 1920. Alexander passes on the screen; and Nero; and Charlemagne and Napoleon; Frodo and Genghis Khan; Constantine and Alhar; Galileo and Marco Polo. Never a dull moment. Never a paragraph that is not crystal clear.

And where Wells stops the Review of Reviews takes up the story. It is the history of the past; the Review of Reviews records and interprets the history of the world today. It is fitting that these two should be yoked together. By yoking them we are able to offer you an educational course such as you get at no school in the land.
